Key Findings:

- In a state that Barack Obama carried by 11 percentage points, the president's approval rating currently stands at 47% among registered voters and 43% among those likely to vote on Tuesday.
- Registered voters in Pennsylvania still divide about whether the worst of the nation's economic problems are behind us or if the worst is still to come. Voters who are pessimistic about the economy and believe it will get worse are more likely to vote Republican. Those who are more optimistic and believe the worst is behind us are more likely to vote Democratic.
- 57% of registered voters think President Obama inherited today's economic conditions from his predecessor. 32% say Obama's policies are responsible for the state of the economy.
- 74% of voters who are likely to vote in Pennsylvania strongly support their choice of candidate. 77% who pull for Toomey and 71% who are behind Sestak firmly back their pick.
- 49% of likely voters have a favorable impression of Toomey while 35% do not. 45% of likely voters in Pennsylvania view Sestak favorably while 40% view him unfavorably.
- Among all registered voters in Pennsylvania, the race for U.S. Senate is Sestak 43% and Toomey 39%. In the previous McClatchy-Marist survey, Toomey had 40% to Sestak's 38% among the entire state's electorate.

About The McClatchy-Marist Poll's Methodology:

Telephone numbers were selected based upon a list of telephone exchanges from throughout the state. The exchanges were selected to ensure that each region was represented in proportion to turnout in comparable elections. In an effort to increase coverage, this land-line sample was supplemented by respondents reached through random dialing of cell phone numbers. The land-line and cell phone samples were then combined.

Nature of the Sample: 806 Pennsylvania Registered Voters

This survey of 806 Pennsylvania registered voters was conducted on October 26th through October 28th. Registered voters were interviewed by telephone in proportion to the voter turnout in statewide elections in each county. Telephone numbers were selected based upon a list of telephone exchanges from throughout the state. The exchanges were selected to ensure that each region was represented in proportion to its turnout in comparable elections. In an effort to increase coverage, this land-line sample was supplemented by respondents reached through random dialing of cell phone numbers. The land-line and cell phone samples were then combined. Results are statistically significant within  $\pm 3.5$  percentage points. There are 461 likely voters. The results for this subset are statistically significant within  $\pm 5$  percentage points. The error margin increases for cross-tabulations.
